

“History, music, technology...BAD BOY MADE GOOD has it all. A contemporary musical odyssey!”

—Jim Zombeck, Marketing Manager/Producer,
New Jersey Network

“Outstanding. Absolutely fascinating.”

—Clif Garboden, The Boston Phoenix

“Stimulating, informative, totally entertaining. A well-made documentary which everyone interested in music must see.”

—Audio Engineering Society

“A compelling look at a fascinating man—essential viewing for lovers of 20th-century music and a great introduction for those of us whose tastes are less noisily inclined.”

—NEFilm.com

“Ron Frank and Paul D. Lehrman's BAD BOY MADE GOOD is a terrific film, perhaps the most original and interesting independent documentary I have screened this year. The story of the American composer whose work caused riots in Europe in the '20s is told vividly and well. Viewer response to WETA's broadcast was very positive.”

—Mary Marshall Kerns, Program Manager,
WETA-TV, Washington, DC

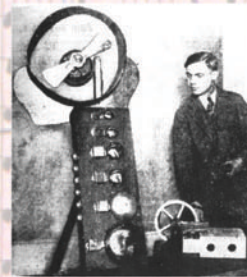

“Your years of diligent research and passion for this project have created a fascinating documentary for us all to enjoy. Thank you, Paul, and all those who made BAD BOY MADE GOOD come to life!”

—Susan Hogan, Wheeling Symphony,
West Virginia Public Broadcasting

“What a treat! I want to make it required viewing in my twentieth-century music course.”

—Prof. Janet Schmalfeldt, music department chair, Tufts University

“My students saw the film last year and they are still talking about it. I highly recommend it for all audiences. It opens a window not just into Antheil but also the rise and fall of the Dada movement, and human nature as a whole.”

—Prof. Gary Gottlieb,
School of Communications, Webster University
